The phosphoricons package

Phosphor Icons for LaTeX

Daniel Nagel

Version 2.1.2-1

1 Introduction

This package provides access to all icons of the free and open-source icon family Phosphor Icons[1] in all six weights — thin, light, regular, bold, fill and duotone — on pdfLaTeX, XeLaTeX and LuaLaTeX.

2 Usage

Load the package and typeset icons either with the generic command or with the per-icon commands:

\usepackage{phosphoricons}
...
\ppIcon{acorn}          % generic, by icon name
\ppAcorn                % same icon, generated command

Per-icon command names are the CamelCase form of the icon name prefixed with `pp`, so `alarm` → `\ppAlarm` and `address-book` → `\ppAddressBook`. Icons inherit the current text color and font size: .

3 Weights and options

The weight can be selected at three levels; the most specific one wins:

1. Package option: `\usepackage[weight=bold]{phosphoricons}`
2. Mid-document: `\ppSet{weight=bold}` or the shorthand `\ppWeight{bold}` (both respect grouping)
3. Per icon, as optional argument: `\ppIcon[bold]{acorn}` or `\ppAcorn[bold]`

The optional argument accepts either a bare weight or a key–value list with the same keys as `\ppSet` and the package options:

`weight` one of `thin`, `light`, `regular` (default), `bold`, `fill`, `duotone`.

`secondary` the color of the duotone background layer as an xcolor expression. The default `.!20` mixes the current text color at 20 % — the equivalent of the 20 % opacity Phosphor uses on the web.

\ppIcon[duotone]{campfire}
\ppIcon[weight=duotone, secondary=orange]{campfire}
{\color{purple}\ppIcon[duotone]{campfire}}

yields .

4 Duotone details

Duotone icons consist of two stacked glyphs: a background layer drawn in the `secondary` color and a foreground outline drawn in the current text color. A few icons (e.g. `cell-signal-none` ◿) only have a background layer.

5 pdfLaTeX notes

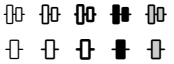

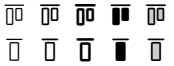

Under pdfLaTeX the TrueType fonts are embedded through the font map `phosphoricons.map`. When the package is installed from CTAN or TeX Live this map is registered automatically. For a manual installation run

or add `\pdfmapfile{+phosphoricons.map}` to the preamble.

6 Icon list

Aliases (different names for the same icon) are listed as separate rows.
